

Invitation to Next Steps Meeting – Parental Engagement in the RAISE Programme

We are thrilled by the level of interest in the parental engagement process for the RAISE programme. This response highlights just how important this initiative is to schools, organisations, and individuals committed to improving educational outcomes for children.

The parental voice and experience will be an integral part of the RAISE programme. Parents and carers are key stakeholders in shaping their children's educational experiences, and their insights are essential to ensuring the success of the programme. By including and prioritising parental perspectives, we can create projects and interventions that truly meet the needs of families and communities.

To build on the momentum and ensure we move forward effectively, we invite you to a 30-minute online meeting where we will outline the next steps in the process. This meeting will provide an opportunity to share our engagement plan for your locality, discuss how parental voices will guide the work, and explain how the parents you work with can get involved.
